Biography

Emory's work explores the intersection of affordable housing policy and urban design, engagement, and ensuring equity in the planning process. She holds an Honors degree in Urban and Regional Planning from Ryerson University - with an emphasis on affordable housing policy and community engagement. Emory is currently managing a year-long strategic planning and engagement program for the Vancouver Public Library, as well as the Official Community Plan Engagement Strategy for the City of North Vancouver. She has designed and facilitated workshops and design charrettes for various municipalities and non-profit groups in BC including the successful Westbank Centre community design charrette in West Kelowna, and the Choose Your Own Adventure themed public events and community conversation kits created for the Vancouver Public Library.
